SYNOPSIS

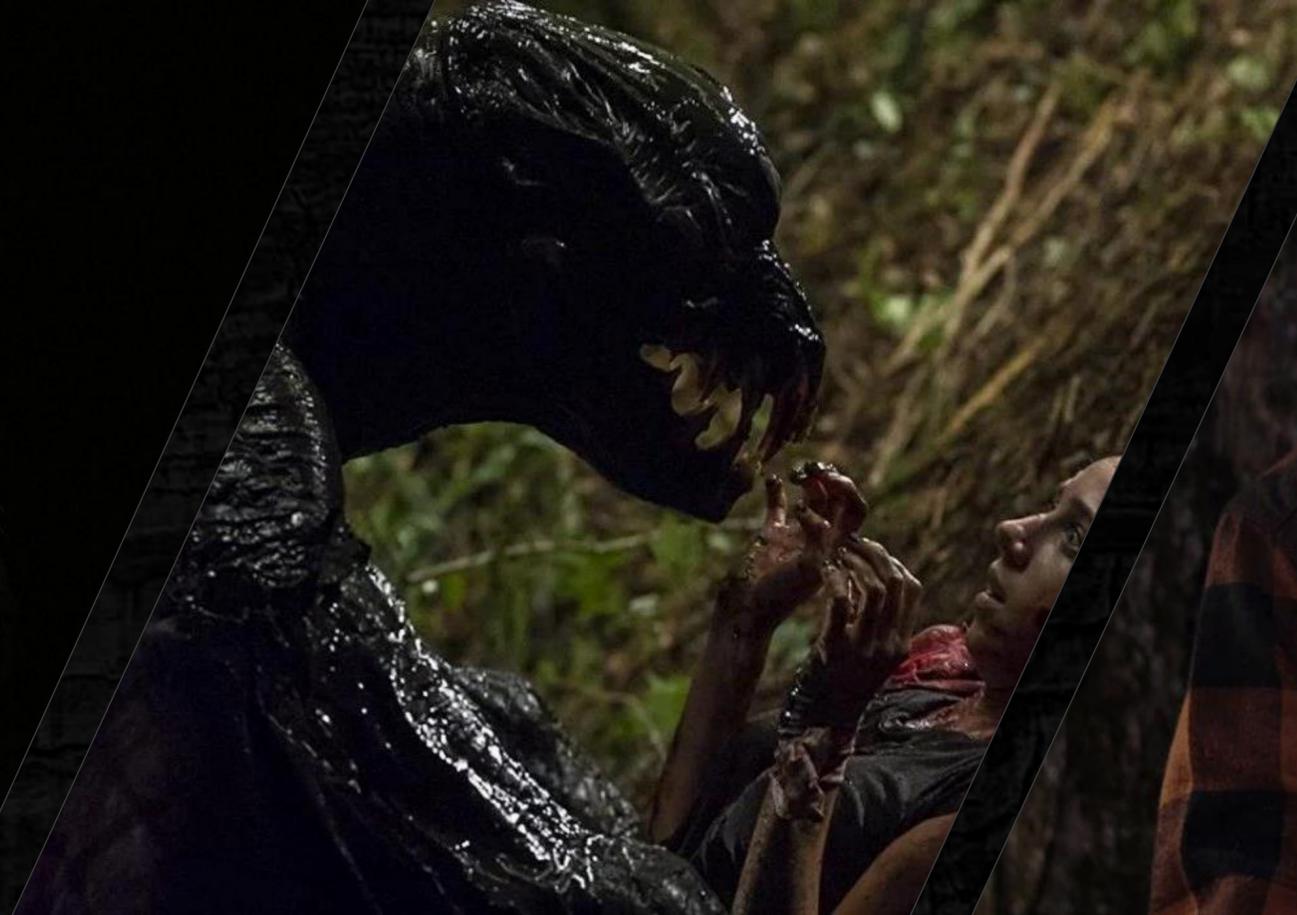

Julia Hopkins, a loving single mother, is separated from her husband Terry and struggles to make ends meet for her two daughters. When Terry calls Julia informing her that he is stranded in the woods and needs her to pick him up, she agrees out of misplaced loyalty despite her bitterness towards him.

Upon arriving, Julia soon discovers that Terry has lost their family dog, and they need to search for it. Soon they find the bloody remains of their family dog and find themselves being hunted by a Werewolf hell-bent on devouring them.

They take refuge inside Julia's car and realize they have lost the car keys and have no means to communicate with the outside world. Julia and Terry must put their differences aside and join forces to survive ferocious attacks while summoning every bit of courage in formulating an escape to get back to their loved ones.
